Bay Of Arabat Center Of Important Struggle In Spring Campaign

LONDON, May 13—Soviet units today captured an important enemy position on the central front, according to a Reuter dispatch from Moscow. The Russians routed the 539th German infantry regiment, the dispatch said, together with supporting forces of the 385th German Spring division.

BERLIN, May 13—(By Official German Wireless)—A special announcement from Adolf Hitler's headquarters on the Russian front claimed today that "the battle of the breach of Kerch has been decided."

The communique asserted that the campaign "ended with annihilation of the enemy forces."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The announcement indicated that the Germans had established a line across the narrowest point of the Kerch peninsula, about 50 miles west of the port of Kerch, running from Theodosia on the south to Arabat on the northeast. Theodosia is on the Black Sea and Arabat on the Sea of Azov. The Kerch straits to the east connect the two bodies of water. A five-mile stretch of water separates Kerch from the valuable Caucasus oil fields.)

40,000 Captives Claimed
The announcement from Hitler's headquarters said that 40,000 Russians had been taken prisoner and much war material had been destroyed or captured.

The Russians were said to have lost 197 tanks, 598 guns and 260 airplanes.

Four small Soviet transports were sunk and a large number of other coastal vessels damaged by German airmen in the waters of the Kerch peninsula, it was said.

Finland gains on the far northern front also were reported.

MOSCOW, May 13 — Strong forces of Soviet Stormovik bomber and fighter planes blasted at Nazi mechanized columns on the Kerch peninsula today after the axis legions were reportedly driven back to their original positions from which they launched the first large-scale Spring offensive.

VICHY AND NAZI CHIEFS HEADING TO NEW CRISIS

LONDON, May 13—Reports received from Vichy and other European capitals were interpreted by observers in London today as an indication that relations between France and Germany were headed toward a new crisis.

This morning Chief of Government Pierre Laval held further conferences with members of his cabinet who are favorable to close collaboration with Germany.

Those with whom he conferred included State Secretary Rear Admiral Charles Platon, Minister of Colonies Jules Brevie and Interior Minister Robert Bousquet.

Laval was reported to have imparted to Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain "grave news" concerning talks he is said to have had with Reichsmarschal Hermann Goering and other Nazi leaders at Moulins on the border of occupied and unoccupied France.

Laval, it was said, is expected to meet with German authorities again soon.

The approach of the new crisis coincides with the threat of a new wave of terror in occupied France.

Reinhard (Hangman) Heydrich who has arrived in Paris to take over police control already has conferred with Bousquet, it was said.

GERMANS OPEN SOUTHERN DRIVE

The long-awaited Nazi spring offensive on the eastern front appears to have been launched as the Germans start attacks on the southern part of the front. They appear to be aiming for Kerch and later, Rostov, as gateways to the oil fields of the Caucasus.

GERMANS DRIVING FOR PERSIAN GULF

WASHINGTON, May 13—Diplomatic sources in Washington today believe the German attack in the Crimea may mean that Adolf Hitler has decided to try to effect a juncture with the Japanese in the Persian gulf.

If such is Hitler's objective, it is thought that the Crimean offensive probably represents the opening move of a triple-pronged drive through the Caucasus and the middle east.

The other two prongs of this drive are considered likely to develop in Syria and Libya.

By concentrating his main efforts against the Soviets in southern Russia, Hitler, it is felt, may believe he can reach the Caucasus and move on through Iran to the Persian gulf.

A supporting German drive through Syria and Iraq into Iran may be attempted by Hitler to cut off the American supply route to Russia via the Persian gulf and prevent the British from sending reinforcements to the Soviets in the Caucasus.

War Bulletins

LONDON — The Swiss radio, according to the Exchange Telegraph agency, reported today that Chinese forces had launched a violent offensive against the Japanese near Hankow.

STOCKHOLM—The newspaper Tidningen reported today that many hundreds of German secret police have recently arrived in Oslo, Norway, from Germany.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico—Gov. Rexford Guy Tugwell today was to testify in a trial involving an alleged $4,000,000 oil conspiracy against the Puerto Rican government, prior to leaving for the United States to discuss problems involving gas rationing, shipping and sugar.

GEORGETOWN, B. G.—A voluntary fund for the purchase of bomber and fighter planes has reached $340,800, authorities of British Guiana reported today.

BERLIN — Several encounters between German patrol boats and light British naval units off the Dutch coast were reported today in the regular communique of the German high command.

LONDON — Nazi-controlled Paris radio today failed to transmit its usual morning "news" bulletins and all wave length remained silent, the Exchange Telegraph agency said. (EDITOR'S NOTE: Continued silence of the Paris radio. (Continued on Page Three)

TWO SLACKERS GO TO PRISON FOR EVASION

CHICAGO, May 13—Described by the court as a "slacker of the worst kind because you know what it is all about," Lauren Wispe, 23-year-old student of philosophy at Northwestern university, was under three-year sentence in federal prison today for draft evasion.

A similar term was meted out to George W. Athains, 27, truck driver of Harvard, Ill.

Wispe was sentenced by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe after Wispe declared from the witness stand that he believed war is morally wrong and described himself as a member of several peace-promoting groups. Athains was sentenced by Judge William J. Campbell on the same charge.

RESCUE CREWS FIND BODIES OF 39 MEN IN MINE

Total Of 53 Lives Claimed In West Virginia Pit Explosion

OTHERS LIE IN SLOPE

Only 70 At Work At Time Of Blast Make Way To Surface

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 13—Sixteen hours after a terrific explosion ripped through the Christopher No. 3 mine at nearby Osage, weary rescue crews finally forced their way into the blasted section early today and found the bodies of 39 of the 53 miners killed in the worst tragedy of the company's history.

The 39 men had been entombed three and one-half miles back from the tangle by the explosion and although hope had been virtually abandoned, the rescue workers toiled ceaselessly through the night to reach them. Earlier, 14 other victims of the latest disaster to strike this rich, soft coal field, had been discovered by searchers in the slope.

Fourteen bodies were brought to the surface not long after the rescue crews penetrated the death chamber. A spokesman for the Christopher mining company said some of the bodies were badly mangled by the force of the powerful explosion.

"Miracle" Hoped For

Frank E. Christopher, president and general manager of the company, did not give up his faint hopes of a "miracle" until the last.

The percussion shook the subterranean tunnel about 2:30 yesterday afternoon, just as the night shift of 110 men was preparing to enter the slope. Of the dayshift crew of 123 men, 70 escaped to the surface. Most of these, however, were not working in the section directly affected by the explosion.

Throughout the long afternoon and night, as rescue squads worked feverishly to free the choked tunnel of debris and shattered equipment, tear-stained mothers and fathers, wives and children, and other close friends and relatives, stood mutely in a roped-off section near the mine head, fearfully awaiting word of their loved ones.

They had felt the earth's tremors, and knew from long years (Continued on Page Three)

NAZIS REPORTED USING SOME GAS IN KERCH DRIVE

LONDON, May 13—The Daily Telegraph reported from Stockholm today that dispatches from Berlin quoted a military spokesman as stating that the German forces on the Kerch peninsula are using a newly discovered non-poisonous gas which temporarily paralyzes opposing troops.

The spokesman, it was said, claimed that the gas enabled the Nazis to overwhelm the first line of Soviet defenses.

Military circles in London said they had no knowledge of any such gas and called the Nazi announcement part of the war of nerves.

The Daily Express, in a dispatch from the German frontier, quoted a Nazi official as admitting the Germans twice used gas in the present war, once in Poland and once in Russia, but claimed in both instances the use was "accidental."

Ohio Pupils Frolic With 'Strike' On

Yellow Springs Boys And Girls Pleased; Faculty, Board Still At Odds

YELLOW SPRINGS, May 13—"When the cat's away the mice will play." And the "mice" were having a grand time today.

Students at Yellow Springs' Bryan high school are enjoying an extended but unscheduled Spring vacation due to the "strike" of the school's eight teachers, who resigned in a body Friday charging they were not receiving proper backing in disciplinary measures from the five-member school board, and demanding an apology for remarks assertedly made against them in a board meeting a week ago.

Things were settled yesterday—almost. The teachers, some of the board members and a delegation of citizens went to Columbus to discuss the matter with state education department officials. Matters were nearly ironed out, and the delegation started for home with an agreement just about reached.

When they arrived back in Yellow Springs, however, they were greeted with handbills, distributed over Mayor Lowell Fess' signature, demanding the resignation of School Superintendent S. O. Liming and blaming the teachers for any lack of discipline in the school.

That threw the fat back in the fire. The teachers, who had modified their demands considerably and were willing to compromise, then refused to rescind their resignations with the statement that "This is exactly what we have been complaining about."

Meanwhile, the students were going fishing, playing ball, or what have you.

PRICE FOR ADMISSION TO DEFENSE CONCERT CUT; EVENT THURSDAY

School pupils were out Wednesday afternoon soliciting the public in an effort to insure a large crowd at the Civilian Defense benefit concert to be held Thursday evening on the school's athletic field.

Robert Colville, who is chairman of the concert, announced Wednesday that the price of tickets had been dropped from fifty cents and twenty-five cents to twenty-five cents for adults and ten cents for students.

This program is the first patriotic demonstration in the county since the beginning of hostilities and all proceeds will go to the promotion of Civilian Defense.

U. S. LOSES SHIP IN S. ATLANTIC

Torpedo Sinks Craft Off South Africa; None Of Crew Missing

NORFOLK, Va., May 13—The first sinking of an American merchantman in southwest African waters since the United States entered the war was disclosed today with announcement that all 36 members of the ship's crew together with an eight-man Navy gun crew have been rescued and brought to Norfolk.

Ten members of a 65-man African roustabout crew aboard the ship when it was torpedoed were killed by the explosion however. None of the American crew was injured.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ships plying African waters customarily pick up African roustabout crews to do stevedore work. They are usually carried from port to port and dropped before the vessel returns to this country.)

The American crew was landed at Norfolk by a passenger vessel carrying a number of Americans and a group of missionaries returning from Africa.

Capt. T. G. Selsness of Brooklyn, N. Y., master of the torpedoed vessel, said his ship—a medium-sized craft—was attacked at night April 3, but did not sink despite a gaping hole in her side. Efforts by the rescue ship to tow the stricken freighter to port failed because the vessel was shipping too much water and had to be abandoned.

QUISLING GOES TO EAST FRONT, SWEDEN HEARS

STOCKHOLM, May 13—Major Vidkun Quisling, puppet premier of Norway, has left the country to go to the German east front (Russia) where he will "stay a long time," the Svenska Dagbladet said today.

There was no confirmation that Quisling had left Norway, where it is known he attended a funeral three days ago.

Meanwhile, the Norwegian Telegraph agency quoted the Quisling newspaper "Frittfolk" as stating that "we are facing a famine if we do not exert ourselves fully."

MONTHLY BASE FOR PRIVATES FIXED AT $50

Senate Measure Setting Up $42 As Lowest Scale Being Revised

BALLOT IS DUE TODAY

Higher Rental And Other Allowances Granted To Officers

WASHINGTON, May 13 — Army-Navy pay increase bill, revised to loosen government purse strings still further for the "men in the ranks," comes up for expected passage in the House today.

Only a late flurry of proposed amendments prevented the war-conscious representatives from reaching a vote on the bill yesterday.

As now amended, the Senate-approved measure increases the base pay of privates and apprentice seamen from $21 to $50 a month. An amendment by Rep. Rankin (D) Miss., boosted the proposed base pay for privates from $42 to $50, and that for privates first class and seamen second class from $48 to $54.

Also covered in the bill are second lieutenants and ensigns with an increase of from $1,500 to $1,800 a year in base pay. Higher rental and other allowances are also made in the lower four grades of commissioned officers.

Estimate Goes Up

The last-minute increase in enlisted men's pay stood to push still higher the estimated $282,000,000 annual additional costs imposed by the bill. Rep. Fish (D) N. Y., said before the $50 pay minimum was approved that (Continued on Page Three)

PICKAWAY BAR GIVES SUPPORT TO WAR CHEST

Pickaway County Bar association held its regular meeting Tuesday evening at the Pickaway Country club with Emmitt Crist directing the activity.

Eighteen members were present and after a steak supper the group had an open discussion of the War Chest movement in Pickaway county.

Having discussed the measure from an economic standpoint and considering the advantages of combining all benefit drives into one program with no surpluses leaving the county, the lawyers unanimously went on record as favoring the local plan for adoption.

CANADIANS ACT TO BALK FUTURE U-BOAT ACTIVITY

OTTAWA, Ont., May 13—Canadian authorities increased vigilance today in the St. Lawrence river where, for the first time in history, a Nazi submarine ventured to sink a United Nations' freighter.

Exact site of the sinking of the freighter, of British registry, from which 41 crew members were saved, was not disclosed.

Long-prepared plans for safeguarding shipping in the river are being put into operation while authorities pressed a search for the u-boat.

POWER IN SKIES TO FORCE JAPS TO NEW FRONT?

American, Australian Fliers' Activities Keep Nippon Losses Soaring

SIBERIAN ZONE NEXT?

Tokyo Has Always Regarded Russian Area As Menace To Its Safety

WASHINGTON, May 13 — Sharp-eyed American and Australian airmen on endless patrol and bombing missions virtually have eliminated surprise as a factor in Japanese strategy in the southwest Pacific, and as a result, military men asserted today that Nippon may strike in another area soon—possibly Siberia.

This was the conclusion drawn by some military and naval experts in Washington following the disastrous defeat suffered by the Nipponese armada in the Coral sea at the hands of America's Pacific fleet units after enemy warships were spotted by U. S. Army and Australian pilots.

Admitting that Japan may make another thrust in force against the island approaches to Australia, these sources contended, nevertheless, that there's a strong possibility the enemy may attempt a surprise attack against Siberia while Russia is busy staving off new German drives.

A number of American military men have long contended that Japan probably would time the expected attack on Russia to coincide with Germany's Spring offensive which appeared to be getting under way in the Kerch area.

Siberia a "dagger" This line of reasoning is based on the fact that the Japanese for years have spoken of Siberia as "a dagger aimed at the heart of Japan," and this may be Nippon's only chance to catch the Soviet fighting on two fronts.

Recent advices from China also predicted a Spring attack by Japan on Russia to knock out or capture Siberian bases from which Tokyo could be bombed. The recent bombing of Japanese cities by American Army airmen proved the enemy's vulnerability to attack from the skies.

This does not mean, however, that Japan will withdraw from the southwest Pacific battle area. War analysts believe that if Japan opens a new war front, she merely will proceed more cautiously in the Australian theatre, probably using harassing tactics to disrupt vital shipping.

To date the Australian campaign has proved more costly to the Japanese in ships and planes than any other drive since the start of the Pacific war mainly because of the smashing counterblows dealt by the growing air forces under General Douglas MacArthur's command.

Ever since the fall of Java, United Nations airmen paced by American Army pilots, have kept up a steady and mounting offensive against Japanese invasion bases and shipping in the New Guinea, New Britain and Timor island areas.

Located Armada These airmen were the ones credited with locating the sizeable Japanese invasion armada as it headed for an unknown destination southward through the Solomon islands about a week ago. Their reports to American naval forces resulted in the spectacular Coral sea battle.

At least 23 Nipponese vessels, mostly warships, were sunk or damaged in this engagement which raged for days. In a surprise blow struck by island based navy planes in the New Guinea area several weeks ago, 23 enemy ships also were sunk or damaged.

In the light of these developments the belief prevailed in the nation's capital that growing American and United Nations airpower plus an alert and hard-hitting navy soon may turn the tide of battle in the southwest Pacific against Japan.

MONTHLY BASE FOR PRIVATES FIXED AT $50

Senate Measure Setting Up $42 As Lowest Scale Being Revised

by the end of 1944 the higher pay for an expected force of 10,000,000 men would approximate "over a billion dollars a year."

The House also approved an amendment submitted by Rep. Maas (R) Minn., bringing the basis of future Navy retirement pay up to the 75 percent of base pay provided by the Army. An Amendment sponsored by Rep. Sunners (R) Ill., granting reimbursement to enlisted men for medical and hospital expense incurred when on furlough, but applying only to past cases, won House approval.

Special Duty Covered

It appeared likely that a provision in the bill requiring the Army to report to Congress every 60 days on civilians commissioned for special duty without previous military training would be amended to include the Navy.

This provision was an outgrowth of complaints that some civilian board recommendations had "gone sour." The boards were abolished by the Army about a month ago.

REICH REPORTS 40,000 RUSSIAN CAPTIVES TAKEN

Battle Decided, According To Nazis; Moscow Charges Positions Remain Same cast as saying that 2,500 German troops were killed in one battle on the southern front while 60 German tanks were destroyed, according to CBS.)

One large column was hampered by planes of the Soviet fleet air arm and 34 trucks were destroyed, according to Tass, Soviet news agency, which said the Russian air force was "pinning down" the German mechanized columns in the Crimea.

Other Axis Units There
Considerable forces on both sides were locked in fierce ground battles all along the peninsula. Concentrations of German cavalry, tank and infantry units were said to include both Italians and Romanians.

Only at one point did the Germans hold their position against the Russians. This was on a sector in the vicinity of the bay of Arabat, on the northern shore of the peninsula almost 50 miles west of Kerch. This drive was brought to a standstill.

(The Rome radio broadcast a dispatch by the Stefani (Italian) news agency claiming "important successes" had been achieved by German and Romanian forces. It was asserted that the axis units were advancing considerably beyond the positions from which the attacks were launched.)

The Moscow radio reported that Russian military leaders were confident of the outcome of the Kerch campaign under command of General D. T. Kozlov who was responsible for the recapture of Kerch last December. It was said that the trend of the battle should become apparent within a few days.

A heavy German air attack on a peninsula town, believed to be Kerch itself, only five miles across the Kerch straits from the oil-rich Caucasus, was reported repulsed, with the Luftwaffe losing 20 planes.

Destruction of these planes brought Nazi air losses in three days to 142 craft.

The low-flying Stormovik bombers, escorted by fighters, which destroyed the 24 German vehicles also were said to have killed many German officers and men.

Heavy casualties were said to have been suffered by the axis forces in the fierce fighting in progress everywhere on the Kerch peninsula.

As the Russian ground forces pushed the Nazi hordes back from their advanced positions Soviet bombers heavily raided their troop concentrations and supply columns.

Stalling Measure
The German drive, seen as an attempt to gain a foothold at the tip of the peninsula for an early push toward the Caucasus, was said in some quarters to have been aimed at forestalling a Russian offensive in the Crimea rather than the beginning of a grand Nazi offensive.

Meanwhile, reports from the Yunnan province in western China indicated that reinforced Japanese detachments were again driving forward on the Burma road toward Paoshan, 100 miles east of the China-Burma border, after apparently nullifying a Chinese counter-attack.

In western Burma, British imperials, tired and outnumbered, were continuing their retreat toward India with the assistance of fresh troops sent in from India to cover that rear-guard action. A London newspaper said about half an original British force of 30,000 in Burma had been lost during the three-month campaign.

While Washington officials credited United Nations fliers in the South Pacific with removing the element of surprise as a Japanese war factor through their bombing attacks and patrolling, General Douglas MacArthur said unfavorable weather had delayed those activities temporarily.

Professional men—chemical engineers and ministers rate highest—make the best husbands, according to a University of Chicago survey.

FUEL OIL FOR HEATING FACES WPA DECISION

WASHINGTON, May 13 — As eastern motorists continued to register for gasoline ration cards today, the War Production Board formally prohibited deliveries of fuel oil for use in heating equipment installed after June 15 in 15 mid-western states, including Ohio.

The order was aimed at discouraging the installation of new oil-burning heating equipment which requires critical materials essential to the war effort, WPA officials said. The restriction does not apply to new stoves for domestic cooking.

Besides Ohio, states affected by the prohibition order are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

Meanwhile the board formally ordered deliveries to filling stations reduced to 50 percent of normal along the Atlantic seaboard effective Friday, and in Oregon and Washington, on June 1.

NEED FOR SCRAP METAL, OTHER GOODS STRESSED

Committeemen from 13 southern Ohio counties were in Chillicothe Tuesday evening to discuss the salvage need faced by industry in the state. William Skinner, New Holland member of the Board of War Relocation, was present.

Leaders in salvage collection campaign announced at the gathering that most dealers have only a ten day supply of scrap on hand at the present time and expressed the need for a widespread canvassing of homes and farms in an effort to replenish the dwindling stock.

Metal, rubber and rags are included in the campaign with an estimate of 500 pounds of scrap metal laying idle on every farm in this territory.

Only three bodies were removed from the mine up until an early hour this morning.

The explosion was said to have carried terrific force. Mine officials said the fan carrying oxygen to the blasted section was still operating, although they could not say whether it was bearing the vital air clear into the pocket where the 39 men were trapped. State police at Morgantown previously had reported that the fan had been shattered.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, May 13
MODERATE SUCCESS and fair fortune may be looked for on this day probably beyond the fondest expectations. While there may be difficult and adverse situations to manipulate by common sense and sound methods and dogged application and shrewdness, yet the determining factor may arise from unexpected sources. Perhaps slight changes may turn the trick, but refrain from drastic action, which might beget some sort of public or group annoyance and frustration.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a successful and gratifying year. In spite of conflicting situations or public opposition or antipathy there may be surprising developments of favorable influence, likewise coming from a group, community or friendly source. But refrain from provocative or drastic action, and employ sound logic, hard work and practical efforts in most critical corners. Sudden and unexpected solutions may arise. It would be wise to read and sign documents or writings with caution.

A child born on this day should have contradictory traits, with much reserve, dignity, and sound motives and methods, yet may be impelled by overwrought or emotional behavior, thus antagonizing needful and vital support.

A SLEEPER WAKES

THE sleeping giant of India, for ages the most peaceful of nations, is awakening to the harsh realities of present-day life. And if we may take the word of Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai for it, which seems a reasonable thing to do, India will play an honorable part in the present world struggle. Sir Girja, a highly educated Hindu, is minister plenipotentiary at Washington, the first representative from India to hold such rank.

"The great masses of people in India are law-abiding," he says, "and their only concern is their daily bread. But the majority of them are willing to fight on the side of England and her allies. The educated classes are politically conscious, and their primary concern is now with the army." They want the Allies to win, and want friendly association with them.

It is reassuring to learn that a nation with so much latent power and intelligence as India seems to understand the present situation. India and America from now on will have more to do with each other.

MADAGASCAR

MADAGASCAR is a place more likely to figure in the news hereafter than it has done in the past. The third largest island in the world, almost as big as Texas, and (counting in its island dependencies) with a greater area than France, Holland and Belgium combined, it commands the Indian Ocean, and in hostile hands would be a constant threat to South Africa. Its products, chiefly tropical, have immense possibilities. Its rice crop, if properly developed, would feed starving Europe. Such are its natural riches that not long ago friends of the Jews suggested Madagascar as a suitable haven.

One test of the value of anything is "Does the other fellow want it?" The Japanese wanted Madagascar. Its rescue from them is good news.

SONG OF LIBERTY

THE Marseillaise, the French national anthem, whose notes have inspired lovers of liberty in many countries, was composed 150 years ago. It is a sad anniversary. Is its singing still allowed in France? Certainly the French national motto, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity," is taboo under the present regime.

Anniversaries remind us of days past. They also point to the future, when perhaps the Marseillaise will once more arouse its hearers to independence and freedom.

We certainly are not yet taxed till it hurts. Shut Out, the Derby winner, won a purse of $64,225, the largest in history.

WORLD AT A GLANCE —By— Charles F. Stewart

IT'LL BE easy enough to think up some proper disposition to be made of Herr Hitler when the Axis is finished. He'll have to be liquidated, naturally. Maybe the Germans themselves will attend to it, as soon as they see the war turning definitely against 'em. Or perhaps he'll bump himself off.

It's quite a Teutonic custom in such situations. If neither of these things happens, it'll be up to the United Nations to choose some destination for him. They won't necessarily kill him, but, anyway, he'll be permanently marooned, locked up—perhaps in a lunatic asylum. It's been suggested already that he's eligible for a berth in such an institution.

These are details, though. No problem's involved except the mere matter of choosing between 'em.

Signor Mussolini figures in no puzzle whatever. He's frazzled out into nothingness, independently of any external influence—unless it's Adolf's influence. A kick in the pants is all he'll require, upon peace's restoration.

How About Laval?

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

SYNTHETIC RUBBER

WASHINGTON — During the public hearings on the reason for the delay in quantity production of synthetic rubber in the United States, the Truman Investigating Committee held a secret session at which officials of Standard Oil of New Jersey were closely questioned.

In the course of this secret interrogation, W. S. Farish, President of the corporation, declared that plans for the production of synthetic rubber "were held in a state of suspended animation" for several months by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The following are extracts of Farish's heretofore undisclosed testimony taken from the official transcript of this secret session:

MR. FARISH: "In June, 1940 to October, 1940, a committee of the Advisory Committee and the Council of National Defense were the government agency to consider and promote synthetic rubber. This committee soon found that it could make only suggestions which no one was authorized to carry out, so in the fall of 1940 the responsibility was turned over to the RFC.

"This agency worked upon the rubber plans with Standard and other companies, which led to the completion of a definite program in January, 1941. These plans called for 75 percent of the capital to come from the government and 25 percent from industry. They were held in a state of suspended animation by the RFC for several months, due possibly, to a desire to save taxpayers money. Finally, on June 22, 1941, Standard was authorized to go ahead with its part of a new and larger program financed largely by Defense Plant Corporation."

MR. HOWARD (another Standard official): "Our attitude is perhaps best shown on this matter of plans in this way; in July, 1941, we were asked by RFC to prepare plans for a 15,000 ton plant. That work was suspended by RFC a little later. Despite that suspension we continued at our own expense on those plans in order that there might be no delay, and when the war broke out in the Pacific and we were ordered to resume work on the plans, they were virtually complete."

MYSTERIOUS INFLUENCE

MR. FARISH: "I would like to make just one comment on the general objective, as I understand it, that this sub-committee is dealing with, and that is, you are trying to find out, has there been any delay in the production of synthetic rubber? If there has been any delay, whose fault is it or what caused it? I simply want to reiterate that I can't find any logical reason why any rubber company or any oil company would be concerned with, or a party to, any delay.

"There has been some reluctance, and I might say some slow movement, on the part of government authorities. My thinking apparatus tells me there has been, perhaps, some influence at work that has caused some delay."

SENATOR TRUMAN: "We want to find what that influence is and see if we can stop it."

MR. FARISH: "I don't know what has caused the delay. There has been some reluctance on the part of the government

War Stimulates Education Of Public on Health Rules

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE BEEN talking to some people from England who advanced the idea that the war will produce a great awakening in the public consciousness about public health. War conditions have caused the civilian populations to depend so much upon the government for distribution and rationing of food products and medical care that for the first time, the health department is aware of what the medical profession and public health authorities have been preaching for such a long time.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

This is especially true of maternal and child health care. I have heard, for instance, of a district in Scotland near Stirling Castle where the entire medical care of the district is directed by one health officer, six deputy medical assistants, 12 health visitors, 50 district nurses and midwives.

Immunizing Treatments

In time of war private rights are relinquished and whereas a good many people object to having their children immunized against diphtheria, typhoid and smallpox in peace time, the health department does not stop to argue in war time but starts in and makes a thorough survey and immunizes them just the same.

The crank who believes that smallpox, diphtheria and typhoid vaccinations only inject poison is gently but firmly put down in a back seat and given little or no attention. In Stirling County 7,000 children were immunized in one month and a systematic search was being made to catch all delinquents. The British nation could not afford to have one unnecessary epidemic.

This program, however, it seems to me is one that has been equalled in many American states which have the advantage of having a bigger health department. In some states diphtheria immunization has been carried out in school children nearly 100 per cent. I believe, however, that we still could tighten up on our smallpox vaccination in the United States. Like Great Britain, we cannot afford to have one unnecessary epidemic.

Maternity Health Act

The Scottish Maternity Health Act of 1937 would be for us quite revolutionary, although a similar basic law has been in operation in Sweden for some time. Applicable

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

ALTHOUGH Tibby thought that Friday night, the evening for the aviation banquet and dance, never would arrive, it finally did. She did not know why she was in such a dither, unless it was the prospect of dressing up and really going somewhere nice. It could not be because she was going with Wayne Courtwright, although she felt that was nice, too.

The new dress Tibby would wear was not of gold lame, as Steena's evening gown was, but it was a lovely dress just the same. It was white, with a cunning tight taffeta bodice, a long, wide skirt of yards and yards of frothy, foamy tulle, caught here and there with a garland of dainty tea roses. It was the sort of dress that made you think of moonlight and gardens, billowy clouds and muted violins. It was, Tibby decided, its zipper fastened, the straps of the tiny bodice in place, a dream of a dress. And she looked very nice in it, if she did say so herself.

Not so breath-takingly beautiful as Steena, of course, but quite nice enough to do Wayne justice. That was the important thing, as Steena had mentioned when she had thought she would be the one whom he would escort to the aviation ball.

Tibby wished, although there was no possible connection, that Tommy could see her now. She had resolved that he should see her sometime, all dolled up, looking sleek and sophisticated and grown up. Maybe, then, he would realize she was not just a girl to take on roller coasters, feed peanuts to, and suggest that the place for her was sitting at home patiently waiting for some man to make up his mind about her.

Another reason she would like to have had him see her tonight—she had had her hair done, too, pulled off her ears, piled high in cunning provocative curls—was that she was mad at Tommy, more mad than usual, for it seemed she nearly always was provoked at him about something or other. But this time she had a really good excuse. He had phoned her on Wednesday, saying he would drop in that same night. And he had never shown up.

He at least could have phoned again, or sent word the following day, or today, even. He must think she had nothing to do but sit and wait for him—which was the way he would have liked it. Well, could he see her now, and it did seem a shame he couldn't, he would know he had another guess coming.

There must be something in wish fulfillments, for just as Tibby, all ready now except for her wrap, was about to put in a call for a cab, the doorbell rang, and there stood Tommy.

He wore a kind of sheepish look that turned to one of stupid incredulity as his glance rested on the vision that confronted him.

"Oh, so it's you?" The funny part was that Tibby was not surprised. It was almost as if she had known her wish would come true. Or maybe it had been a premonition. She might have sensed that Tommy was on his way to see her.

"Sure it's me," Tommy said, ungrammatically as well as stupidly, for the point was, was this Tibby, this vision floating before his incredulous eyes, this beautiful stranger with dark curls swept back from her brow, giving her the look of a princess, dark mystery in her bright eyes, a faint, knowing smile on red lips that was both tantalizing and inviting? He had never seen Tibby look like this. He had never dreamed she could look this way.

"You're going away?" young Dr. Dare inquired. She had not asked him in. She had practically asked him out the last time he had been there. And he knew he had not helped matters any by not showing up Wednesday.

"I'm not staying home," Tibby returned, more sharply maybe than called for. "I'm going to the aviation banquet and dance. Won't you come in? I have a few minutes before my taxi calls for me."

Tommy stepped over the threshold somewhat gingerly. Maybe the vision would fade away, for although of course he recognized it now as Tibby, he still knew that in a way it was not she, not, at least, the Tib he had known so long.

"I brought you something," he said. It was a peace offering, although it had not been his fault about Wednesday, as he had come to explain, if there was time before that taxi. He offered the package, tucked under his arm. It was a box of candy, quite a nice box, but somehow it did not seem nearly nice enough to present to such an ethereal creature as the vision in white before him.

The vision proved it was not altogether ethereal by accepting it—almost greedily. "Chocolate," Tibby exclaimed. "With fruit and nut centers." She read that from the gold letters on the lid, having ripped off the wrappings. Then she remembered she was still angry at Tommy. He need not think he could make up for standing her up with a mere box of candy. She was the arrogant, lovely stranger once more. "Thank you very much," she put the box down, unopened. She would have liked to have sampled it, for it was such fun not knowing what you would bite into next, but the chocolate coating might get smudged on her new dress, so she resisted such temptation nobly.

Tommy was disappointed. He had been right. It had not been nice enough. He had never known Tibby to put aside a box of candy with-

Hints on Etiquette

When dining in a first-class restaurant, don't hesitate to make

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday children are opportunists, using each favorable incident as a stepping stone to success. They are reticent, sometimes moody, and not always kind. They make few friends, but those they have will be deep and lasting. The next year will bring them unexpected good fortune and changes, but a lover or friend may cause them some loss, or at least, annoyance. They should avoid speculation during this period. The personality of the child born on this date will be dignified, proud, determined, dogmatic, conservative, but generous, idealistic and very artistic! The passions and emotions may, however, cause sorrow.

Seventy-Five At Bible Class Social Gathering

Marie L. Hamilton Shows Pictures As Program

Bowls of lovely Spring flowers in pastel shades made splashes of color on the tables when the annual banquet of the Westminster Bible class of the Presbyterian church was served Tuesday in the social room. About 75 guests were present.

Mass arrangements of iris, snowballs, dogwood and tulips formed the colorful background for the affair.

Dinner was served by candle light at 6:30 p. m., the tiny airplanes of confections at each cover being amusing favors for the guests.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey pronounced the invocation.

Mrs. Charles Smith, class president, spoke informally at the close of the dinner hour, welcoming the guests and presenting Miss Marie L. Hamilton, who provided entertainment for the evening.

Miss Hamilton showed Kodachrome views of interesting places visited during a trip through the West and through Canada and delighted the group with her pleasant comments on the unique scenes. Her pictures showed many outstanding scenes of the 1941 Pumpkin Show and also little-known places in Pike, Ross and Hocking counties.

Mrs. Will Mack and members of Division II of the church provided the excellent dinner. The artistic decorations were placed by Mrs. Arthur Steele and Mrs. Orin W. Dreisbach. Miss Florence Dunton and Miss Winifred Parrett were members of the program committee.

Out-of-town guests were Miss Mary Barrere, Hillsboro; Mrs. Irvin Weart, Cherokee, Ia.; Mrs. Essie L. Schlear, Xenia, and Mrs. Edith Cassidy, Columbus.

Circle 4

Twenty-one members and visitors attended the meeting of Circle 4 of the W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Francis Donohoe, East Water street.

The program included Mother's Day and missionary readings and a quiz on Mother's Day in charge of Mrs. B. F. Harden.

Mrs. Donohoe, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Thorne, Mrs. H. B. Colwell, and Mrs. C. F. Abernethy, served refreshments during the closing social hour.

Loyal Daughters' Class

Election of officers for the Loyal Daughters' class of the United Brethren church was held Tuesday at the meeting at the home of Mrs. Adolphus Pearce, 213 West Corwin street. Mrs. Fred Zwicker will serve as class teacher for another year and Miss Gladys Noggle was reelected president.

Others chosen include Mrs. Frank Hawkes, vice president; Mrs. E. L. Pritchard, secretary; Mrs. Pearce, treasurer; Mrs. Russell Jones, chorister, and Mrs. Hawkes, pianist.

Mrs. Arthur Ankrom was in charge of the devotion and read the scripture lesson from St. John 14. After group singing, readings were presented by Mrs. Porter Martin, Mrs. Elmer Stebleton, Mrs. Pearl Harrison, Mrs. Hawkes and Mrs. Elliott Mason.

The class voted a gift of appreciation to the Rev. A. N. Gruesser.

Lunch was served to 27 members and guests by the May committee comprised of Mrs. Pearce, Mrs. Zwicker, Mrs. Sam Steele and Mrs. Loring Valentine.

Benevolent Association

May meeting of the Circleville Benevolent association was conducted Tuesday in the city cottage by Miss Florence Dunton, president. Miss Clara P. Southward, social worker, submitted her report for April in which she noted few changes in relief work in Circleville.

She mentioned that there was a decrease in the number of families assisted, but said that in several families the needs were greater. She stated that more supplies were issued during the month than in April 1941.

Donations of clothing were made by 33 persons in April 1941 while 30 sent donations last month. The gifts were more generous this year so that most of the clothing needs were supplied.

Miss Southward reported 330 persons, ranging in age from one month to 75 years, in the 80 families assisted during April. She listed supplies issued from the cottage as 40 pairs of shoes; 18 hats; 20 coats; 66 dresses; 197 other garments and 268 miscellaneous articles including a bedstead, springs, a feather bed, pillows, blankets, comfort, bed spreads, curtains, rugs, a rocker, trunk, dishes, knives, forks, spoons, handbags and other things.

During the month, the report showed food given to five families.

YOU CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM?

The CARAT WEIGHT of these two diamonds is the same. Neither has visible imperfections. Yet their actual worth and lasting value may differ widely.

The degree of PERFECTION is one of the qualities which determines any diamond's worth. There are more than a dozen categories of perfection which separate the flawless, "perfect" diamond from the stone having visible imperfections.

CUTTING... its accuracy and style... controls the brilliance of a stone, and greatly affects its value.

The traditional COLOR of a diamond is called white, or blue-white. Tinges of brown or yellow which deviate from this standard decrease the worth of a stone.

We invite you to come in and see how these qualities vary among the different stones in our own collection. This knowledge, and the established integrity of the jeweler from whom you buy, are your best assurance of getting real value in diamonds.

THEATRE MYSTERY

"That Last Performance," a macabre tale with a theatre background, is the "Inner Sanctum Mystery" to be heard on Sunday, May 17, over the Blue network at 8:30 p. m. The story revolves about an actor who is such a perfectionist—who lives his part so completely—that he brings disaster on his troupe. The climax of the story comes when he is required to play "Death" on stage. He does—with uncanny results! Hi Brown, who directs, and Raymond Edward Johnson, who plays "your host" on the program, promise that after you hear this script, you will be more careful about the plays you see!

RADIO NOTES

Radio's favorite brat, Ezra Stone, heard as Henry Aldrich in "The Aldrich Family," joins the "Treasury Star Parade" during the week of May 18, appearing in the title role in "Tommy Tucker, Patriot," the story of a high school boy who wanted to do his part in the nation's war effort.

Kate Smith is so anxious to see as many War Bonds and Stamps as possible sold, she not only plugs them on her radio programs but she has also launched a War Bonds and Stamps drive in Radio City last week.

It was 'way back in 1922 that Gracie Allen played hockey from secretarial school to pay a backstage visit to a friend at a vaudeville theatre, where she met her future radio partner and husband, George Burns. And Gracie still remembers enough of her pot-hooks-and-typing lessons to take down script changes in shorthand during rehearsals.

Despite the priorities' clamp-down on recordings, Decca has signed Diane Courtney, the blue network thrush, for her first waxing date. She'll make an album of Walt Disney tunes, comprising hit songs from his cartoon pictures. Diane is the gal who followed Dinah Shore as diva on "Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street." Dinah went on to stardom with her own Friday night programs, the Eddie Cantor programs and a picture contract. Diane now has her own song series on the chain.

When Boris Karloff begins his second series of three starring broadcasts on the Sunday night "Inner Sanctum Mystery" show on the blue network May 24, he'll do a requested repeat of "Man of Steel," a script taken from H. G. Wells' "The Cone."

CCC Starts Evacuation Of Its Local Barracks

Twelve Boys Leave For Indiana Camp, Others Prepare To Move

ARMY WILL TAKE OVER

Expansion Of Quarters To Handle 300 Soldiers Being Predicted

In accordance with government orders to evacuate their camp, 12 boys of the local CCC barracks left Wednesday for Worthington, Ind., where they will be stationed in the future.

Two more are to be sent this week to Hillsboro and one to Stanton, Ky., leaving 10 men to remain with Commanding Officer Martin Hofsetter to pack all CCC equipment and records for the general evacuation. This will take about ten days with the group then going to Fort Knox, Ky.

Mr. Hofsetter stated that with present disbandment of CCC camps only two are to remain in the state of Ohio, one at Hillsboro and the other at Zanesville. The local barracks — built last October to house boys who served as apprentices at the unit's garage on Clinton street.

The government recently took over the garage for servicing Army trucks and hired eight of the CCC trainees as civilian workers to remain.

The Army is expected to move into the Mound street camp June 1 and will undoubtedly expand the structures to house 300 men. The lot offers facilities now for housing only 100 men.

Work now at the garage is under direction of the Army and most government trucks which will be serviced and repaired there will move to Canada where they will be used in construction of the United States-Alaska road.

to push this question and to put money into it. They might have thought nothing was going to happen to our supplies in the Far East. They might not have taken the threat of a shortage seriously, or they may have been influenced by other considerations."

IT'S ON THE CUFF

The tailoring experts of the Quartermaster corps, using tape measure and slide rule, have figured that by leaving the cuffs off soldiers' uniforms, they save enough wool to make 150,000 additional uniforms.

It takes three yards to make a uniform—without cuffs. To add cuffs would require an additional .15 of a yard of cloth.

On the basis of the 3,000,000 uniforms now being provided, the saving of .15 of a yard on each amounts to 150,000 suits.

Says the Quartermaster General: "Civilians take note."

Born in Switzerland 80 years ago, Martel lived with an uncle who ran a book-shop in Zurich. He became such an authority on the stock of the shop that whenever a customer inquired about the contents of a book, the uncle would summon young Charles.

He still reads prodigiously and every day he can be found in his cubby-hole office pouring over piles of books that cover every inch of the floor. Most modern books, Martel considers to be trash. Heavy stuff is his meat. Kant's famous "Critique of Pure Reason" slowed Martel up the most. He was able to devour it only at the rate of 20 pages an hour as compared to his normal pace of 100 pages an hour.

Martel retired ten years ago, as head of the cataloguing division, but the Library asked him to continue in a sort of emeritus status as a consultant. He eagerly agreed because to him reading is living.

Martel never stops reading. After a 9-5 day at the library, he settles down at home to some private reading. And when he retires, he reads in bed before going to sleep.

MOVE TO DRAFT RAY MILLER TO BE SUCCESSFUL?

COLUMBUS, May 13 — Cuyahoga county Democratic Chairman Ray T. Miller returned to Cleveland today with the avowed intention to reconsider his decision to remain out of his party's gubernatorial nomination race.

Forty Democratic leaders from all parts of Ohio met in Columbus last night and requested Miller to seek the nomination for governor. Miller, before attending the meeting, had announced he would not be a candidate for his party's gubernatorial nomination.

However, after sitting in on the three-hour conference, the former Cleveland mayor said he would go home, talk with his organization, canvass the situation over the state and then announce his decision, probably by Friday.

"If I think I can win, I'll be a candidate," Miller asserted.

The Democratic leaders met under the chairmanship of Albert A. Horstmann, of Dayton, head of the party's state central committee. After the leaders agreed to the "draft Miller" program, they appointed a committee of 10 to contact candidates already announced for governor to try to induce them to withdraw.
